acceptable use policy

As an Internet Service Provider, Dakota Central Telecommunications Cooperative will not censor any content of information passing through its network unless the information is deemed illegal. Dakota Central Telecommunications Cooperative will cooperate with legal authorities in the investigation of any suspected criminal or civil order of infringements.

1. Unacceptable behavior will result in immediate account termination.

Examples of unacceptable behavior include but are not limited to:

- a. Harassing others by "mail-bombing" or "news-bombing".
- b. Falsifying user information provided to Dakota Central.
- c. Posting articles to any newsgroup, mailing list, or similar form, which are off the topic according to the charter or other public statements of the forum.
- d. Forging any message header, sending e-mail with headers altered with the intent to disguise the sender, in part to whole, of any electronic transmission, originating or passing through Dakota Central's services.

e. Threatening bodily harm or property damage to individuals or groups.

f. Distributing computer viruses, worm, or any software intended to damage or alters a computer system without the owner's consent.

g. Installation of "auto-responders", "cancel-bots", or other similar mechanisms which generate excessive network traffic, disrupt newsgroups, or e-mail.

h. Fraud: involves a knowing misrepresentation or misleading statement, writing or activity made with the internet that the person receiving it will act upon it.

2. Unsolicited advertising (a.k.a. "spamming") via e-mail newsgroup posting is prohibited. Spamming is cause for immediate termination and penalties may be charged to an account. Dakota Central considers the following activities as spamming:

- a. Posting or e-mailing offers such as "make money fast" and "pyramid" or chain letter.

b. Making fraudulent offers of products, items or services.

c. Posting unsolicited advertisements for products, items, or services to five (5) or more unrelated newsgroups, forums, mailing lists, or e-mail addresses.

d. Using Dakota Central servers to relay unsolicited commercial e-mail.

3. Personal account connections have idle timers, which terminate a dial-up session after 30 minutes of inactivity. Idle timers may not be defeated by auto-generation of data mimicking user activity. Dakota Central's personal accounts are for interactive use only.

4. Dakota Central allows no more than one (1) dial-up connection from a personal account at a time. A dial-up account shall not be accessed simultaneously by multiple users using the same user ID.

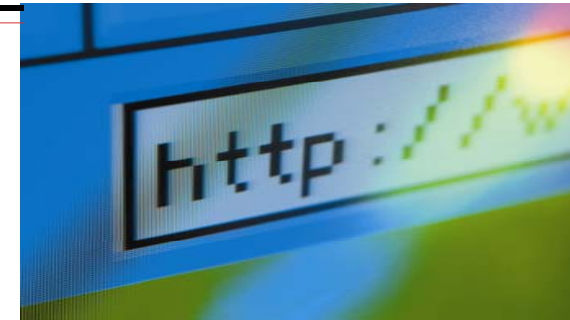

5. Disk space quotas for personal accounts include storage of World Wide Web, anonymous FTP, email files and personal files. Personal accounts must not exceed their disk quota or they may be suspended until the customer brings the disk space under the quota limit, or purchases additional disk space. Additional disk space is available for a normal monthly charge.

6. Abuse of technical or customer support call center services or personnel is not tolerated. Support will not be provided to abusive users and repeated abuse may result in termination of the user's account(s).

7. Prohibited Use of Products and Services - Resale of the Company's products or services, unless specifically permitted and documented in a separated written agreement or the initial Customer contract.
